“Moving between the personal and the socio-political, as well as between the local and the global, this memoir offers insights into the inner strengths of a self that lead to success in life. It registers the wisdom and accomplishments of a humble gentleman, who shows a strong affection for Hong Kong, the place of his birth. His narration deciphers for the reader a meandering course of life characterized by aspirations and coincidences, fortunes and surprises. This book is an inspiration and faith for those who are interested in learning how a Hongkonger can contribute to causes that reshape the world.”

Kwok-Kan Tam, Chair Professor and Dean of Arts and Social Sciences, The Open University of Hong Kong.
